In a Nutshell ... The "Lost wax" Casting of a Bronze

To learn how every one of my bronzes is made, please click on Clay to Collector here: http://www.joybeckner.com/Canine-Animals/clay-to-collector-slideshow-joy-beckner.htm

While little 1:6 scale bronzes do not need a multi-part mold, all the other steps are the same: There are at least three persons who work on each piece at the foundry, in addition to what is listed below for a total of at least ten persons! Basing requires yet more persons!

- I. Joy: Sculpts her original.
- 2. Mold Maker: Adds sprues to my small originals to be molded with the original. This saves time at the Foundry.
- 3. Mold Maker: Makes the Mold
- 4. Wax Pourer: Pours Wax. This is generally the person who made the mold.
- 5. Wax Chaser: Chases (fixes) the wax.
- 6. Foundry Sprue Person: Trees several waxes. Wax welds 3-4 small waxes on a wax tree for dipping into shell.
- 7. Foundry Shell Person: Dips and dries wax tree until the shell is thick enough.
- 8. Foundry: Melts wax out of shell. "Lost" Wax.
- 9. Foundry: Turns empty shell upside down in sand box and pours 2200degree bronze into the shell.
- 10. Foundry: Beats shell off the raw bronze when it is cool.
- II. Foundry: Cuts off sprues.
- 12. Foundry: Delivers raw bronzes to my Metal Chaser.
- 13. Metal Chaser: Bead blasts each bronze to clean off any remaining bits of shell.
- 14. Metal Chaser: Fixes little imperfections in the metal.
- 15. Joy: Checks each metal before it goes to patina. Mind you, I drive 900 miles one way to accomplish this. I am picky about quality.
- 16. Joy: Delivers finished metals to my Patinuer.
- 17. Patinuer: Heats the finished metal with a blowtorch and applies chemicals to make the bronze the color I asked for. Each patina WILL vary.
- 18: Photographer: Joy takes bronzes to photographer for pretty pictures.
- 19. Joy: I wax each piece, cut and apply a label to the bottom of each handheld bronze.
- 20. Joy: I drive the finished metals home 900 miles!
- 21. Joy: After a bronze has been ordered, I pack each one for shipping.
- 22: Joy: Secretary Joy creates a label for UPS or the USPS for shipping.
- 23. Joy: Delivers your package to the shipper.

Thank you for considering my work for your collection.
